A voracious young lady vouches for this one: A woman in Winnipeg had made herself a bedspread of very unusual design. She had run out of one color of yarn and couldn't get an exact match. The final corner was therefore slightly different. She washed the spread and set it out to dry and it disappeared. Visiting in Montreal shortly after, she went with her hostess to view a bride's wedding presents and saw a bedspread exactly like the one she had herself made, even to the odd corner. She got her hostess to inquire who sent it. It was her next door neighbor in Winnipeg! Can you beat it? It is enough to discourage anyone, even under the most favorable circumstance, from stealing anything.

Parliament is not satisfied to leave the railway situation unremedied. This session it was made worse by at least two measures—one providing compensation for any railway employee who loses his job—the other a general law that any employer is guilty of an offence who discharges an employee merely because of the latter's connection with a trades union.

There is no record of what salaries are paid to ranking officials of the C.N.R., but Mr. Fairweather is drawing down probably twenty thousand dollars and his job is to see that nothing is done at Ottawa to alter the present set-up. The people have to pay for the organized resistance to policies designed to lessen the drain on their pocket-books.

It is an easy task, seeing that there is no party now in Ottawa prepared to give him battle, but he will yet have to reckon on a large and increasing feeling throughout the country in favor of amelioration. It is at present leaderless, but politicians have a knack of discovering it when it becomes visible and audible. Mr. King himself would not hesitate to adopt a policy that promises political gain, even if it involves reduction in public expenditure.

California Grasshoppers

Talk about "carrying coals to Newcastle," can it beat "importing grasshoppers to Vulcan?"

Despite the fact that Vulcan is the centre of infestation of the annual grasshopper plague, Joe Collier has imported from California, via Cranbrook, a supply of grasshoppers. Yes, we said "grasshoppers," but we hasten to make it clear that these 'hoppers aren't the live, voracious kind so familiar to us all and more especially to our farmer friends, but are delicately pickled and conveniently put up for use as fish bait. Whether Joe had a forgetful moment when he ordered the 'hoppers or whether he believes the imported variety superior to the produced-in-Alberta kind is an open question, but surely this blot on the escutcheon of our noble, although all too familiar, Alberta grasshopper will not go unchallenged. Of have Alberta fish really become so petted and pampered that they turn up their noses at home-grown grasshoppers and demand those imported from California? We'd like to know.

New Coffee Shop Opens This Week

The Brown Jug, a new cafe operated by the Whalen Bros., will open this week-end. Situated in the former post office building, the Brown Jug will offer a complete restaurant service, from ice cream and light lunches to full course meals.

The premises have been completely renovated, the front of the building being stuccoed and a two-tone color scheme in light shades of brown giving the interior a smart appearance. The horse-shoe shaped counter and arrangement of refrigeration and other facilities are designed to aid the staff in giving quick and efficient service and ample daylight will be admitted through a skylight and wide front window. Large sponge-rubber seats assure the comfort of patrons and modern, no-glare lighting is another feature that will be appreciated.

Special Oldtimers Church Service

On Sunday evening next, June 4th, at 7.30 p.m., there will be a special service in the Vulcan United Church for old-timers in the Canadian West.

The sermon subject is "Pioneering Days," forty minutes of interesting items from the early days of Southern Alberta. As an added item of interest the following four questions are being asked: if you think you can qualify, give your name, with necessary information, to the ushers at the door.

1. Who in this service can lay claim to the earliest residence in any of the four western provinces? Give month, year and place.
2. Who in this service can lay claim to the earliest residence in Alberta. Give month and year.
3. Who in this service can lay claim to the earliest residence within 15 miles of the present site of Vulcan. Give month and year.
4. Who in this service can lay claim to having been present at the first service held in this church?

The names of the first three in questions 1, 2 and 3 will be announced in the service and will be sent as a news item to the Calgary papers. Here is your chance to prove how much of a Westerner you are.

Set Up C.C.F. Organization Little Bow Constituency; Garland Speaks

Unchecked Monopoly System Cause of Hard Times, Says Garland; Advocates Public Ownership of Banks

The Little Bow constituency set up a C.C.F. organization at a meeting held in the Canadian Legion hall on Monday evening, at which time those present were addressed by E. J. Garland, former M.P. for this riding.

V. Bertrand of Milo was elected president, Mrs. R. R. McBride of Arrowwood was elected vice-pres., and O. E. Wobick of Barons was elected secretary-treasurer. The district was divided into four sections, with one director to be elected for each. A Thorsten of Mossleigh was chosen for the north-west section and R. R. McBride of Arrowwood for the north-east. A representative for the division extending south from Vulcan to Carmangay will be elected at a meeting to be held in the latter town on Thursday evening. One for the district from Carmangay to the south end of the constituency will be elected at a meeting to be held in Barons on Friday evening. A membership fee of one dollar will be charged, half of which will remain in the constituency.

Recommendation was made that the board make arrangements to select a candidate for the next federal election.

Garland Addresses Meeting

Mr. Garland, in a two-hour address outlined the platform and policies of his party.

An unchecked monopoly system was blamed by the speaker for existing hard times, and he suggested ownership by the people through co-operative methods similar to those now in Sweden and New Zealand.

Public ownership of all banks and a more sane and just interest on all mortgages was, Mr. Garland stated, one of the prime objectives of the C.

C.F. party. A clause should be made in drawing up all mortgages making no interest chargeable or collectable in event of climatic conditions or calamity, over which the farmer has no control, rendering him unable to meet his obligations.

National crop insurance of $6.00 flat per acre, to be paid from a state fund. This would simply cover the cost of seeding and planting.

The setting up of a central grain board, fixing a minimum price of 90 cts. per bushel for wheat, to the farmer.

A permanent market agency. Mr. Garland stated that freight rates to the three Western provinces are a constant drain on the people, pointing out that the actual cost of shipping goods from Eastern Canada to the Pacific Coast was only half of that charged if goods were delivered in Calgary or Edmonton. Also that canned goods, for instance, produced in Alberta and shipped to Vancouver were higher in price than the same goods shipped from Ontario owing to the prohibitive freight rates.

The speaker deplored a system that allowed for the practice throughout the country of "dumping" of fruits, and wholesale destruction of other foodstuffs, so sorely needed for maintenance of health by countless numbers of children, and this for no better reason than to keep up the price and create a scarcity in the home markets.

Refuting the oft repeated contention of over-production, Mr. Garland said that in reality if the standard of living were maintained here that exists in New Zealand, and that doctors and scientists claim is necessary for a sturdy race, Canada would have to increase production of every commodity excepting wheat.

Mr. Garland will conduct a series of addresses throughout the constituency this week.

Stavely Pioneer, Andrew Tinkess Dies

In his 70th year, Andrew Tinkess died at Ponoka on Sunday, May 28th. A farmer in the Vulcan district for the past ten years, Mr. Tinkess was well known and liked. He will be missed by many friends and acquaintances.

Born at Avonmore, Ontario, in 1869, Andrew Tinkess came west in 1903, homesteading in the Stavely district. In 1907 he married Alice Reynard of St. Mary's, Ont., at Claresholm and the couple continued to live in the Stavely district until 1929, when they moved to Vulcan, where they have since resided.

Surviving Mr. Tinkess are his wife; one son, Nelson, at Sundre; and seven daughters, Mrs. William Penn, Stavely; Mrs. Leslie Sparks, Claresholm; Mrs. Ronald Peritt, Stavely; Mrs. Reg. Sansome, Kirkcaldy; Mrs. Ted Hames, Sundre, and Mabel and Donna at home.

Funeral services were held Wednesday and interment was made in the Vulcan cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of the Snodgrass Funeral Home.

Board of Trade Picnic June 21st

Arrangements are being completed by the Vulcan Board of Trade to hold a picnic for the members and their friends at the Lethbridge Experimental Station on Wednesday, June 21st. Considerable interest is being shown in the work of the Board of Trade this year but last month's meeting, which was to be addressed by Mr. L. D. Nesbitt of the Alberta Wheat Pool, had to be postponed owing to other attractions that were being held in town that evening. Several enquiries have been received by the secretary relative to the control of the potato psyllids. G. F. Manson, of the Dominion entomological laboratory at Lethbridge recommends the following sprays: for potatoes and tomatoes, Lime-sulphur spray for potatoes—dry lime-sulphur, one pound; water, eight gallons.

Lime-sulphur spray for tomatoes, same as above, except with the addition of two gallons of water.

Standard liquid lime-sulphur may be used at the rate of one part to 40 parts of water for potatoes or 45 to 50 parts water for tomatoes.

Skin irritation induced by lime-sulphur may be treated with a weak iodine solution.

Fine dusting sulphur may be used instead during fine, hot weather.

The crop should be treated at least three times during the season, June 20, July 15 and August 10th are recommended.

Thanks Royal Visit Committees

To the Editor:—
Re: The Visit of Their Majesties to Calgary, May 26th, 1939.

On behalf of the Canadian Legion in Alberta, may I be allowed to express our thanks to the local committee, the parents, teachers and others who gave so freely of their time and effort to make this a memorable day for the children of the community. Without any reflection of the work of others on the local committee particular mention should be made of the hard work of the secretary, Mr. W. A. Howes, and the chairman, Mr. W. D. Allan.

When it is realized that over one thousand people from this area, the most of whom were children, saw the King and Queen solely through the community spirit of local committees, I am sure we all feel it was a worthwhile effort. To the children themselves it will be an unforgettable experience. They saw the visible head of the largest empire on earth, and if it only helps to instil a small measure of respect for the constituted authority under which we live—and enjoy freedom of thought and action, then no effort has been wasted.

NOMINATING CONVENTIONS

WITH the possibility of provincial elections coming upon the next few months, there is interest attached to any nominations now in progress. The actions of the various parties opposing the present government are under anxious scrutiny. It is unquestionably "the will of the people" that all opposing factions combine in an effective alliance to displace Premier Aberhart. There is common desire that Liberals, Conservatives, U.F.A. and others unite in nominating one candidate in each constituency. This is the only type of opposition which can hope to be successful.

A recent announcement has been made that Liberals of Calgary and Edmonton wish to co-operate with other parties in order to elect a government which may undo the harm that the present government has done. Unity has also expressed a wish to co-operate, so there is reason to suppose that the candidates chosen in these cities will have endorsement of all.

This willingness to co-operate bears out the views expressed by E. L. Gray in a recent radio broadcast. He suggested meeting with opposing groups in any constituency to consider co-operation, and also said: "whenever any one organization does not represent a complete cross-section of public opinion, it is suggested that the executive of the different organizations meet in an 'independent' constituency association to decide a course satisfactory to the people." Altogether, the impression was gained that Mr. Gray intended that Liberals should co-operate to the fullest extent with other parties on a basis which would bring out the best and most representative candidate.

It is extremely unfortunate that the recent nomination conventions at St. Albert, Vegreville constituencies did not demonstrate the spirit of co-operation as expressed by Mr. Gray. If these precedents become the rule, it will destroy the goodwill which Liberals are seeking and will also be destructive to all well-organized opposition.

In Vegreville, according to report, it was the Liberal association that called the convention, asking for attendance of all those opposing Social Credit. There was a good attendance of all combined opponents and the selection of a candidate, Dr. Yakimishak of Ukrainian descent, was unanimous. But the trouble came in deciding under what name the candidate would enter the field. There was objection of some to "Liberal," of others to "Unity" of others again to "Unity Liberal." The Unity supporters suggested that Dr. Yak run as an Independent, and offered full co-operation on that basis. The Liberals, however, were very obstinate in demanding the inclusion of their particular tag on the candidate, and the meeting ended in a lack of harmony, which was not at all in evidence in the selection of the candidate.

In this instance there is no credit to the Liberals for their apparent desire to dominate not only in fact but also in name. The other parties attending the convention gave definite approval to the selection of Dr. Yakimishak, fully aware that he had been Liberal in all past affiliation, and if elected would probably give his measure of support to the Liberal leader. They accepted all that, asking only that he come out as an "Independent" bearing no outward Liberal tag. And in failing to gain this concession they left the meeting in an irritation which is quite understandable.

It appears that many Liberals consider Unity a cloak for Conservatism, and object as strenuously to the term Unity, as the Unity followers object to the term Liberal. If all that is separating them is a name why can they not compromise on "Independent" and go forward on that basis.

The public does not respect pettiness, nor any insistence on minor details in face of a major question. Neither Liberals nor Unity can afford in their own interests, any attempt to overreach each other. They are in a position where they must work together on an honest, open basis, or the public will condemn them bitterly. The best expression of co-operation was given in the election of Dr. Campbell at Lethbridge. This is an example which can be followed in every constituency. That is the way the people want it to be.

PEOPLE OF THE WEST

MOST people are still thinking in terms of the visit of the King and Queen to Canada, and one wonders what Their Majesties thought of the western wheat lands. Back of the festivities and display of the large cities, did they visualize the millions of acres of grain and ranch lands which have created these cities? Did they realize that scarcely more than half-a-century ago, there was no habitation, no settlement on these vast plains; that in the intervening time thousands of pioneers from all parts of the world, have stormed the West, and through their determination and industry have achieved our present development.

No doubt many of the little settlements looked pathetically barren, and lacking in the beauty and hominess which is so much a part of rural England. But we must hope that they saw in the struggling little trees and gardens, in the humble lonely homes, the valor and endurance which have made the West. Perhaps across the long stretches of the prairie, they caught shining glimpses of brave men and women who will not be defeated.

It is to be hoped that they realized that in this section of country between the Rockies and the Great Lakes, are hundreds of nationalities, all living peacefully side by side, bound by common interests, and remote from the friction and factions of terror-ridden Europe. It would seem tremendously important that Their Majesties would realize that the thousands of western people congregated to do homage to the Crown, are by no means all British born or of British descent. They are from all parts of the world, and yet are as eager as any to pay their little tribute to the King and Queen of the Empire. This success in Canadianization, cannot be too greatly impressed.

Perhaps our military display, considering the immensity of our country, was not impressive. But from that they would deduce that the soldiers of a pioneer land are not untrained. They are fighting to make the soil productive, to battle the plagues which eternally beset the grower of crops and herds. They are exploring and developing the northlands for minerals. They are engaged on a hundred fronts, spending their lives to make this section of the British Empire, a great and productive land. Theirs is service to the Empire no less real, than the march of feet and the shouldering of arms.

It is to be hoped that the King and Queen saw Western Canada as it really is—made up of striving, humble, hard-working people of unquestioned allegiance. It is to be hoped that they saw this great land also as a land that can furnish the mother country with an inexhaustible supply of wheat and meat.

TREES INSTEAD OF GUNS

DOWN at Coutts, on the southern border of Alberta, and at Sweet Grass, just across the border in Montana, an interesting ceremony will take place on Saturday. Boy Scouts from Sweet Grass will cross the boundary and plant a tree at Coutts in recognition of the birthday of the King, and Scouts from the Alberta town will pay a return visit to plant a tree at Sweet Grass.

Similar ceremonies, it is announced, will take place at various points along the international boundary. So while boys in Europe are being trained to plant guns along international boundary lines, boys of these two countries will plant trees instead.

The significance is too plain to need stating. May the trees all grow, and may the neighborly feeling which prompts this interchange of courtesies grow with them. The Scouts may not think their tree-planting is important, other than as a pleasing incident in a day's outing. But it is something more than that. It is a demonstration to the world that where democratic countries border each other the boundary line does not have to be marked by anything more dangerous or costly than trees.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Far North to see the King and Queen. They were risking their lives in a hazardous trip of over two months. Temperatures were 40 degrees below zero. Blizzards were bringing threat of death. They had packed their sleighs with flour, bacon, deer and caribou meat, with supplies to last many weeks. Then, taking the course of frozen rivers as their trail south, they had headed their dog teams through the wilds.—Financial Post.

Freedom of Speech

One of the functions of the chairman of the CBC is to appear once a year before the parliamentary committee on radio broadcasting to give an account of CBC activities and to answer charges which the opponents of the Corporation bring forward. The committee is now sitting and a few days ago Mr. Brockington gave them an outline of some of the considerations which he thought should govern Canadian broadcasting. The allotment of time for the broadcasting of political views was a problem, Mr. Brockington said. He would like to set a time in the week when groups such as the C.C.F., the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers, the Canadian Legion, the group organized by Hon. W. D. Herridge, and the old political parties all would be given equal opportunity over the public network without fear. When asked whether he would include the Communist party in that list, Mr. Brockington's answer was: "Yes, sir, I would." He continued: "I don't know if my fellow governors would agree with me, but I would. The finest institution in the world is Hyde Park. I'd like to see it on the air."

That is the sort of direction this country's broadcasting needs, and we are fortunate in having it. There is too much lip service paid to freedom of speech and thought in Canada today, and too little real backing given to these ideals in high places. The Advocate does not believe in Communism, but it believes, and believes emphatically, that Communism or any other political doctrine which is supported by groups of Canadian citizens should and must be given an opportunity to place its case before the people of Canada. The people must judge.—Red Deer Advocate.

Here was the Duke of Windsor, the man who sold the British Empire to the world, the man who for 30 years served his country faithfully and well barred from the air of his native land. Both broadcasting corporations had nothing to fear from the Duke. He has ever acted as a gentleman, and even in the great crisis of his life, his abdication in December, 1936, he so well conducted himself that a vast empire changed its king without a shot being fired. America at that time admitted that no other nation could have accomplished such a step without revolution.

"CANADA CALLING" IN BRITAIN

Typical of scenes witnessed at cinemas in some of the principal cities in Britain these days is the above photograph, showing English schoolboys trooping into a theatre at Reading, England, to see a special screening of films provided by the Dominion Government. One of the many activities of the "Canada Calling" campaign, the films depict farm, fishing and industrial scenes which emphasize the importance of Canada as the food basket for the United Kingdom. The campaign, which covers the major population centres in Britain, is being conducted by the Dominion Government's Department of Trade and Commerce. Regarded as one of the most carefully planned efforts ever launched by a British Dominion, this trade crusade also embraces a series of localized drives and extensive newspaper advertising and marketing operations. In addition, it is supplemented by lectures to schools, women's clubs, domestic science classes and other organizations, and has enlisted the support of thousands of merchants who are giving special displays of Canadian products.

Hopper Poison Offers Hazards

At a time when so much hopper bait is being used, the public is advised to exercise caution to prevent any illness or infection from use of bait. Occasionally some of the bait falls from wagons, trucks and trailers and children, barefooted, might come in contact with it. There is also risk to persons handling the bait, but as a rule, precautions are taken by those experienced in its use.

An instance was recorded in Manitoba where a construction gang used a building as living quarters, which had previously been used as a poison bait station. All the men became ill and the investigation pointed to general arsenite poisoning. All the mixing stations in Alberta were thereupon condemned for use as living quarters.

This is an aggravated case, but does indicate that care should be taken in the mixing and use of bait. In the case of the local rink, only one small section of the building is in use, and any spread of bait poison would be in the air. However all precautions are being taken to protect the public in any later use.

The curate prided himself on his oratorical powers. He was describing the downward path of the sinner, and used the metaphor of a ship drifting and going to pieces on the rocks. A sailor in the audience was deeply interested. "The waves dash over!" cried the curate. "Her sails are split! Her yards are gone; Her masts are shivered! Her helm is useless! She is driving a shore! There seems no hope! Can nothing be done to save her?" The sailor rose in his seat, his eyes wide with excitement. "Let go the anchor!" he shouted.

Braving Blizzards To See Royalty

In an article in the Daily Mirror, London, England, the writer pictured Canada as a land of ice and husky dogs and fur-clad humans, all converging on civilization to see Royalty go by.

Hundreds of men, women and children, we read, were daring the Arctic blizzards in a great trek southward from the wilds of Canada's

Concerning the advisability of breaking out in print occasionally with a few cold facts. Doctors and appendix victims

When a little country paper finds itself on the verge of breaking for lack of support, the editor should break even by getting off a few specimens of gospel truth, regarding the people of the town. Of course he would have to have a horse saddled ready at the back door on date of publication. Get-a-way day should be observed in every newspaper office.

The last edition of the busted paper in Pumpkin Centre or Squaw Hollow should read like this:

"John Boon, the laziest merchant in town made a trip to Bowden yesterday.

"John Doyle our grocer is doing a poor business. His store is dusty and dirty, and we don't like the cat that sits in the prune barrel.

"Rev. Sky preached Sunday night on charity. The sermon was punk. If the reverend gentleman would live up to what he preaches he'd have a better congregation.

"Dave Sonkey died at his home on Sunday. The doctor said heart failure, but what do you think. His home is an old shack on Rowdy Street.

"Married—Miss Myra Rhodes and James Manahan were united on Saturday evening at the Baptist parsonage. The bride is a very ordinary girl who knows no more about cooking than a rabbit, and never helped her mother three days in her life. She has a gait like a fat duck. The groom is well known as an up-to-date loafer. He has been living on his old folks all his life. They will have a hard life together and the Times has no congratulations as it does not think any good can come of this union.

"Died—Simeon Calmont, aged 58 years, died this week. He was an ill-natured man with an eye to the boodle. He came here in the night with another man's wife, and joined the church at the first chance. He owes several dollars for papers, large bills at the grocers and butchers and you could hear him pray for six blocks. He was buried in an asbestos-lined coffin and his many friends threw palm leaf fans on his grave, as he may need them. His tombstone will be a resting place for owls."

Calgary Doctors

Has anyone noticed how few operations for appendicitis are being pulled off at the Calgary hospitals these days? The reason, of course, is that the people haven't got the money for such luxuries. The doctors, aware that everyone is broke, do not recommend these operations any more. They prescribe precarious pills for piebald people instead, and let it go at that. During real estate and other booms, the doctors make the fat fees out of surgical operations that do not seem very necessary in lean years.

It is significant that newspapermen are never operated upon for appendicitis. The fee is round $250. That lets them out, and is probably the reason why so many editors are still alive and kicking.

Doctors as a class are a jolly jovial class. They roar with laughter when telling of their daily rounds, and love jokes about removing large tumors from fat women's stomachs. When a patient croaks, they refer to it as "losing a patient." When they consider the fees that might have kept coming in from this patient, it is quite easy to assume grief when speaking with the victim's relatives.

A patient in Calgary the other day came out from under the influence of chloroform for the second time, and saw the doctor once more whetting his knife.

"For goodness sake, doc," he pleaded, "You're not going to chop me up any more are you? I feel very empty. Don't take out all my insides. Leave a little for the love of Mike."

"Ha! ha!" laughed the doctor as he yanked a hair from the patient's head and tested the edge of his weapon. "That's just the point. My friend here the anaesthetist, who is sitting behind your head with the chloroform outfit, says that I've already taken out so much that you'll fold right up and die if I take any more. We've got a little bet on it. I've already taken out your stomach, your spleen, your gall, your appendix. Now I'm going to have a whack at your liver. Take a good whiff of the sleepy-sleep old man. I've got a $10 bet on you."

Gossip Here and There

The movement to have the next World's Fair at Okotoks, is being pooh-poohed by the Midnapore Gazette.

Radcliffe, the popular hangman, has decided to quite hanging murderers.

This will be good news for High River prospects.

The lumber investigation is an awful farce. Might as well bring a suit against the devil and try the case in hell with Judas as Crown Prosecutor.

A Scots lassie was being examined by the minister who said: "Weel, I trust ye hae never broken any o' the commandments." "No, sir," she replied coyly, "but I hae chipped yin or two." Women have a clever way of saying mean things that a man can never hope to equal.

It isn't always safe to keep knocking merely because the victim does not strike back.

Calgary is not really larger than Winnipeg and Hootch combined. It merely feels that way.

An elderly farmer drove into Calgary one day and hitched his team to a telegraph post. "Here," exclaimed the burly policeman, "you can't hitch there." "Why, can't I?" shouted the irate farmer. Why have you got that sign up 'Fine for hitching'?"

We have not been in Edmonton for several years, but from all accounts it has not altered much. A man died there not so long ago and passed to another world. He was one day strolling round, looking like a stranger, when another old Edmontonian accosted him saying: "Hello, old chap, how are you making out?" "Bully! I tell you Heaven is much better than Edmonton." "Heaven!" exclaimed the older resident, "Why this isn't heaven."

Mrs. Guzzle Buster Entertains

Mrs. Guzzle Buster, the charming chateleine of one of our suburban homes, gave a delightful dance one night last week to a select few. While executing the hula-hula at the top of the stairs, gyrating rapidly and yelling in a high pitch, Mrs. Guzzle Buster fell headlong to the bottom of the stairs and nearly broke her neck. The guests laughed heartily at this amusing episode. This was one of the gayest affairs of the season and reflected great credit on the Scotch.

The Grand Old Party Tour

A group of members of Royal Opposition accompanied Borden on a grand tour of the West in 1902. They visited Calgary among other places, all yelling for the Grand Old Party. They saw big pickings. On their return east they got exclusive information from Dan Mann about the route from Winnipeg to Edmonton and thus were able to speculate on a sure thing. Then they got very good terms from Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, in fact, a reduction of $1.50 per acre on a purchase of 200,000 acres. To make a long story short, the officials and speculators of the Union Trust company, whom they allowed in, cleaned up $500,000. Why did Dan Mann put those Conservatives next to the secrets of the firms' private maps, and why did Shaughnessy favor them with reductions such as no bona fide settlers are ever given.

Hootch Newspaper

Hootch, the thriving little burg on the C.N.R., now has a weekly newspaper, the Hootch Clarion. It is a bright and snappy sheet, filling a long felt want. The local column is alive with interesting chat about local matters, and here are a few of the breezy extracts.

"A flock of ducks was seen flying south last Wednesday. What does this mean."

"Go to Harrison's for latest styles in shoes."

"Rev. Fielding of Empress was in town Thursday."

"Drop in on Boggs, the butcher, and look at his sausages."

"A delightful bean social was given last Tuesday night at the blind pig by Mr. Thomas Boggs, the talented harness maker."

"No fewer than forty-seven letters were received at the post office one day this week, and the Postmaster General's department is thinking seriously of adding a lean-to to the present premises, in order to cope with the rush. Visitors to Hootch are agast at the amount of business transacted at this office."

"The windstorm the other day blew off the door of James Proctor's barn, but within ten hours, he had a man fixing it. It is enterprise such as this that has made Hootch what she is today, Youngstown's most formidable opponent."

An attendant in a mental home was making his evening round when he came upon one of the patients industriously fishing in a wash-basin with rod and line. Wishing to humor the man, the attendant asked him if he had caught anything. "What!" said the patient, "In a wash-basin! Are you crazy?"

Pertinent Topics Discussed by H.C.

Stalin's desire to line up with Germany amounts to an obsession. It derives from 1934 when Hitler won Stalin's heart by his infamous purge when he killed 288 persons. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery and Stalin who had killed his thousands in the same way came to look upon Hitler as a real dictator. This is probably true and will account for the difficulties Britain and France are meeting now in trying to bring Russia into their camp.

↑—↑—↑

There were heroes before Agamemnon. There were likewise treaties before Versailles. One was just the year before. It was made by Germany when Russia was lying prostrate and riddled by revolution. It was the treaty of Brest-Livotsk in 1917 under which Russia had to give up sovereignty over Russian Poland, Lithuania, Courland, Livonia with Esthonia, to Germany and Austria, and to Turkey it gave Ardahan, Kara and Batum. It also provided that Russia should recognize the independence of Finland, Georgia and the Ukraine. She also had to agree to pay reparations amounting to six billion marks. Under it Russia had to give up 34% of her population, 32% of her agricultural land, 54% of her industries and 89% of her coal mines, besides access to the Black Sea.

When Hitler talks of the iniquities of Versailles we have a right to remember this, and guess what would have happened if Germany had won. It didn't win, and had to pay reparations but it received from other countries more than it paid for reparations. It was in the way of loans that were never paid back. But a more recent exhibition of what Germany exacts when it wins is shown in its conquest of Czechoslovakia. What consideration was paid to the vanquished thereby a triumphant Germany? If you say well, that's the result of Versailles, we point you to six milliard francs exacted from France after the war of 1870.

No doubt Senator Sauve thinks himself broadminded when agrees that any Canadian who wants to participate in a war should be allowed to do so but only at Britain's expense. He is the only man in the whole world who should fight to preserve those British institutions under which he became leader of a provincial party, a member of a federal government and gained a seat in the Senate.

The Chamber of Commerce got down to business on Monday last and came right out in the open with interesting demands, and the occasional flash which promised to develop into fireworks. Division Board Large Unit Meets

A meeting of the divisional board of trustees of the Foothills school unit met last Saturday at a long session which paved the way for decisions to be reached at the next meeting to be held May 30.

The trustees met with a deputation from the teachers' salary committee to discuss the schedule of salaries. The deputation included I. Casey, Miss Day of Brant, Mr. Grant of Cayley and Mr. McCullough of Aldersyde. The schedule presented by the teachers, and the schedule prepared by the divisional board were very far apart. The board stressed the necessity of drawing up a schedule within the budget allowance. Arguments were presented to support both proposals, and the teachers withdrew with the idea of trying to map out a schedule within the possibility of the allotment for salaries. This matter is expected to come up for decision on May 30. Both teachers and trustees progressed from their original plans, to a better understanding.

No action was taken in respect to assisting children, who otherwise could not afford it, to go to Calgary on May 26. It is beyond the power of the board to vote money for such a purpose.

A delegation from Herronville presented proposals for re-organization of the district school service, somewhat similar to the proposals made earlier in the year by Mossleigh. A decision in respect to both districts is expected shortly.

Mother: "Jack, did you post those letters for me?" Jack: "Ye mother, but just as I was dropping them into the mail box I noticed that you had put the stamps on wrong. The out-of-town letters had two cents on them and the home town letters had three cent stamps on them." Mother: "But how did you change the stamps?" Jack: "I didn't—I change the address."

Albert was tired and weary after a long search through the shops in town. His wife, hearing him come home, called out: "Albert, were you successful?" "No, darling," he said: "I've been to every shop in town and they can't match this material anywhere." "Isn't that lovely!" his wife replied, "I just wanted to make sure that no one else could have a dress made of it."

Community Life School At Olds

Annual Education Gathering Patterned On Scandinavian Folk Schools, Opens July 3 to 15th

The School of Community Life to be held at Olds' agricultural school, will run from July 3 to 15th and is open to everyone between the ages of 17 and 50. This is the third year for this educational gathering, which is patterned on the Scandinavian Folk schools.

It is designed primarily for rural people but city residents have also shown interest, and last year's roll was double that of the previous year. Following the Scandinavian custom, no compulsion is exercised in the number of courses or lectures attended. Notes may or may not be taken. There are no final examinations and no credits.

A special week-end course is being given on July 7, 8 and 9.

Staff members and courses are: James-Murray, B.S.A., principal, Olds School of Agriculture; Donald Cameron, M.Sc., director of adult education; Norman A. Mackenzie, B.A., LL.B., LL.M., international affairs; W. M. Drummond, M.A., rural sociology and co-operative principles; Mrs. Mary M. Atwater, handicrafts (weaving and design); Watson Thomson, M.A. (Glasgow), social psychology; Miss Gwen Pharis, B.A., dramatics; Miss Christine MacIntyre, B.A., home-making, and A. T. Kemp, B.S.A., horticulture.

Part of each day has been set aside for reading and relaxation. Entertainment and games play a major part in the evenings' program. Various summer activities such as golf, tennis and softball are easily accessible.

Handicrafts, international affairs, dramatic direction, co-operatives, social psychology, home horticulture, dressmaking, are amongst the courses. Expense is very light, no more than covers cost of board, and the plan is sponsored by the University department of extension, the provincial departments of agriculture and education.

80-mile an hour cars on 40-mile roads and 20-mile an hour drivers are the cause of so many car accidents, according to one observer. Human carelessness is undoubtedly the biggest factor.—Coleman Journal.

Four Revolters On Social Credit

Four M.L.A.'s Formerly S.C. Have Been Vigorously Attacking Government Methods

Four legislative members, A. E. McLellan, A. L. Blue, S.A.G. Barnes and Charles Cockcroft, have been delivering speeches, attacking in unqualified terms the methods and policies of the Social Credit administration. This is the more noteworthy, through the fact that all these men entered the legislature as Social Crediters and had the best opportunity to judge of the honesty of purpose of the Aberhart regime. They attended caucuses and were on the inside of all political manoeuvring. And through this experience, they revolted, and have come forth definitely opposed to the hypocrisy and devious methods allegedly prevailing.

A. L. Blue in one of his addresses is quoted as saying that treasury branches have nothing at all to do with Social Credit. They were set up to create jobs for heelers, by a government which hopes to keep in power. This is significant, because treasury branches have been played up as another great step toward interest-free money.

Great public attention has focussed on these men who are in deadly revolt against the insincerity of the government. Inefficiency and blundering might be excused on the ground of inexperience or incapability. But accusations of graft and hypocrisy are infinitely more serious, coming as they have from men who were at one time in the inner circle.

Mr. F. Parkinson who was supervisor of hopper stations in this district last year, has the same position this year with headquarters at High River. His area includes stations at Okotoks, High River, Cayey, Staveland, Champion, Vulcan, Brant, Nanton and several other points.

The King and Queen must have good digestion to meet with proper enthusiasm the feasts which are to be spread before them day after day. Breasts of snowbirds trapped when the snow was on the ground, are a Quebec dainty; maple syrup, Louisiana strawberries, California cherries and so on, all parts of the continent sharing in contributing the good things which are to be "set before the King."

The British press has suddenly taken to playing up Canada, which is startling in view of the scarcity of Canadian news in normal times. Some of the information is rather extraordinary, describing the typical Canadian home as having a cocktail bar, a roof for sunbathing and what not. But part of the material has strains of accuracy. And at any rate Canada is making space in British newspapers, as it never does ordinarily.

The husband who is tempted to say that his wife can't take a joke will do well to look at himself in the mirror and then drop the idea.

WORTH-WHILE

* No better illustration of what modern business, in its organization, can do in co-operating to further the interests of those other industries dependent on it, is to be had than that of the Agricultural Implement Industry in its relation to farming.

Its inception was the making available to other farmers the tools which one ingenious farmer developed to lighten his own labors and enable him to accomplish more in the always too short seasons. Its support by farmers to the point which has enabled the building of organizations financially and technically strong enough to carry on large scale experimental engineering has increased its efficiency and usefulness to the benefit of every farmer.

Ever alert to the immediate problems of the farmer, whether it be soil-drifting, which it enabled the farmer to combat by producing and perfecting the One-Way Disc Seeder, or the need for still lower costs of production which it helps to solve as in the case of the adapting of the low cost harvesting combine to the needs of all farmers, both large and small, by developing the New Small Power-Take-Off Combines, its experimental departments are even now busily engaged in laboratory and field work anticipating the ever-new demands which farming continues to make on those whose life work it is.

Early associations with the pioneer farmer brought realization of his need for financial assistance and no source has been as liberal and none less costly than the implement maker in providing the necessary equipment to enable the farmer to reap full benefit from his land and efforts.

The urge for greatest volume to keep manufacturing costs down has ever dictated as low a selling price as was consistent with good business principles and prices of farm implements in Canada are cheaper than on any other continent in the world outside North America. Canadian prices compare most favorably with those in United States where the benefit of the world's greatest implement market is accorded the industry.

Mossey-Harris regards highly its reputation for co-operating with the farmers of Canada and the co-operation it receives from the support and good-will of farmers generally.
